

Downtown West Palm Beach Condominium Market Report

September 2026 · Prepared October 2, 2026

What Stood Out

- Closings slowed. 17 resale units closed in September and 16 in August, the two slowest months of the past twelve. September 2025 had 25.
- Supply held steady, and it is uneven. 112 resale condos are on the market, 4.6 months of supply, little changed from 116 on September 1. Under $2M there are 3 to 4 months of supply, from $2M to $5M about 8, and above $5M 15, where nine of the 15 listings are in one building, Forté on Flagler.
- New construction is most of the pipeline. 62 units are under contract downtown and 40 of them are in developer buildings. Only 22 are resale; 12 of those went under contract in September.
- Sellers are giving up about 6%. The median September sale closed at 94.0% of its last list price, against 95.0% over the past 12 months. With only 17 sales, one month's median price moves easily; the 12-month median is $645,000.

Months of Supply by Price Tier

Active resale listings divided by the average monthly sales pace of the past 12 months

Tiers above $2M rest on about 10 sales a year each, so their supply figures move sharply with one or two listings.

Developer Inventory — New Construction

These nine buildings sell mostly through direct developer contracts that never reach the MLS, so they are kept out of every resale figure above. What the MLS does show for them is listed here: units offered, asking prices, and contracts recorded.

What changed this month. Resale figures now exclude nine developer-controlled buildings (previously four), cover the downtown core east of I-95, and correct several building assignments (Flagler Pointe, Norton Park Place, Viking Arms and La Fontana are now reported under their own names). Forté on Flagler, delivered in 2025, is counted as resale. Every month-over-month and year-over-year comparison in this report was recalculated on the same basis, so figures here will not match the August edition.

Scope: condominiums in ZIP 33401 and 33407 east of I-95, list price $350,000 and above. Resale figures exclude the developer buildings listed above. Source: BeachesMLS via FlexMLS, exported October 2, 2026. Buildings are matched by street address, not subdivision name. Sale-to-list ratio compares the closed price with the last list price.
